

MURDER WITNESS ARRESTED ON LIBEL CHARGE

DEPOSED SULZER
FINDS A REFUGE
IN MOOSE PARTY

Impeached Governor Is Nominated for Legislature by Progressives in New York City Assembly District.

SULZER GIVES THANKS FOR THE NOMINATION

He Issues Statement Accepting, and Says He Is Going Back to Albany—Leader Bird Opposed Nomination.

New York, October 20.—William Sulzer, impeached as governor of the state, was nominated for the assembly tonight by the progressives of the sixth assembly district. Mr. Sulzer, in 1889, began his public career as a member of this branch of the state legislature.

Mr. Sulzer has agreed to accept the nomination, it was announced at the meeting where he was chosen as the candidate. Max Steindler, progressive leader in the sixth assembly district, who placed the former governor's name in nomination said Mr. Sulzer reached him by phone from Albany inquiring if he had been designated. Mr. Steindler replied in the affirmative. He said he asked Mr. Sulzer if he would accept and Mr. Sulzer replied he would gladly do so.

The nomination of the impeached executive was brought about against the desires of the state and county leaders of the progressive party. The sentiment among the progressives throughout the state was against the move, according to State Chairman Theodore Douglas Robinson and County Chairman Francis W. Bird.

"Unwisdom," Says Bird.

Mr. Bird, in a letter to Mr. Steindler before the meeting, signed and cautioned him regarding the "unwisdom of nominating Mr. Sulzer."

"Of course, it is a fundamental progressive principle that the settled will of the people in any district should govern in the making of nominations," Mr. Bird wrote. "Progressives everywhere will recognize that the committee must perform their duty in accordance with the settled will of the people of that district."

However, Mr. Bird pointed out, although 3,200 voters in all parties, as he was informed, out of a total of 6,000 voters, had signed a petition favoring Mr. Sulzer's nomination, such a nomination, "if brought about in this way, would be more of a neighborhood than a party nomination."

It would not be a strictly progressive designation, but a nomination by the voters of all the parties in the district using the vacancy that happens to be on the progressive ticket for their purpose.

After Mr. Sulzer had been nominated tonight there was a demonstration in the east side meeting hall. Bands in the street outside played national airs. The nomination was made unanimous.

SULZER GIVES HIS REASONS FOR ACCEPTING NOMINATION

Albany, N. Y., October 20.—A few minutes after the progressive convention that nominated him for assembly, Mr. Sulzer issued a statement telling why he had "consented to come back to Albany."

Throughout the evening he was in communication by telephone with progressive leaders in New York.

There never was any doubt but that he could have the nomination if he wanted it, he declared. "Not does he doubt that the first of January will see him back where he began his political career twenty years ago. He and his friends also are convinced that he will go from there to the speakership and thence to the governor's chair."

Some time tomorrow Sulzer will go to New York. He will begin a campaign for the assembly immediately and speak day and night up to election time.

After that he will accept some lecture engagements up to the first of January. If it then is necessary for him to come to Albany, he will arrive here on the opening day of the legislature to start the fight which he hopes will put him back in the executive chair. His promise is to make the "fur fly" if he is made an assemblyman.

"And not only will I make it warm for my enemies in the assembly," he declared, "I'll make them take notice in other places, too."

Statement of Sulzer.

His statement follows in part: "In view of the urgent pleadings from life-long friends and the request in writing from more than half of the registered voters of the sixth assembly district, regardless of party affiliations, begging me to accept the nomination for member of the assembly to further the cause of honest government, I have consented to come back to Albany as a member of the assembly for the good that I can do.

I shall be a non-partisan candidate, having no axe to grind and no motive or purpose other than to do what I can for the cause of good government—the struggle for which accomplishment brought about my removal from the governorship by an arrogant boss whose dictates to do wrong I defied."

Sulzer agreed to run after consulting with a score of political advisers today. The rabbit of every synagogue in the sixth district called at the executive mansion today to urge Sulzer to make the race. They brought petitions signed by 3,800 voters in the district asking Sulzer to run. There are said to be only 7,700 voters in the entire district. Mrs. Sulzer urged him to accept the nomination.

Obviously Sulzer was well pleased.

POLK MILLER DROPS
HIS BANJO FOREVER;
DEATH CALLS HIM

Richmond, Va., October 20.—Polk Miller, a Richmond business man, known throughout the south for his plantation stories of war times and his performances on the banjo at many confederate reunions, died suddenly at his home here tonight. He was 69 years old.

For many years Mr. Miller had been pressed into service by the chamber of commerce to help entertain thirty or forty national organizations which held their annual conventions here. With a banjo he frequently accompanied his "darker quartet" and related many original and amusing stories in the negro dialect. He appeared in many plays in the southern states, often with Colonel Tom Booker, another confederate soldier.

A week ago he was the chief entertainer at a smoker tendered the American Gas Institute by the city of Richmond.

For twenty years or more Mr. Miller traveled over the south, but seldom appeared out of the territory, because, as he explained, his dialect stories elsewhere were not understood.

WILSON IS PEEVED
BY GREAT BRITAIN

President Thinks British Government Not Very Friendly in Mexican Matter—Explanation Made by British.

Washington, October 20.—While there was no change in either the status of affairs at Mexico City or the American policy, an international phase of the Mexican situation that attracted wide attention tonight was the formal inquiry made earlier today by Ambassador Page, at London, as to what was construed here as an unsympathetic attitude toward the United States by Sir Lionel Carden, the British minister to Mexico.

It is understood that the basis of the inquiry was a confidential report to the state department, the content of which was not divulged here. It is known, however, that what particularly displeased both President Wilson and Secretary Bryan was the presentation by Sir Lionel of his credentials to Provisional President Huerta the very day after the latter had proclaimed himself dictator. The American government felt that Huerta's rule was a violation of the Mexican constitution, but by his assumption of legislative powers, had so altered affairs in the Mexican capital that the British minister might well have withheld his presentation of credentials.

Inquiry was directed to determine whether the British foreign office had instructed Sir Lionel to present his credentials in this manner, and if so, the explanation of the British foreign office in press dispatches that the presentation of the credentials was merely a coincidence and not antagonistic to the American point of view, was not commented on by officials tonight.

Diplomatic circles interpreted the incident as a strongly intimating to Europe the desire of the United States to have a free hand in dealing with the Mexican problem.

British Answer to Page.

London, October 20.—Walter H. Page, the United States ambassador, this afternoon discussed the situation in Mexico with officials of the British foreign office.

The view of the British government is that the policy of Sir Lionel Carden, the British minister to Mexico, is not antagonistic to the point of view of the United States, and it is pointed out as merely a coincidence that Sir Lionel Carden presented his credentials simultaneously with Provisional President Huerta's declaration of a dictatorship.

The fact that Great Britain had recognized Provisional President Huerta rendered it necessary, it is argued here, that the British minister should present his letters without delay and so obtain official standing.

Did You Get Your Share?

It was a great day in the shops yesterday.

Merchants who advertised Sport Coats for Misses and other warm and attractive winter garments for men and women reaped a HARVEST.

With the June Bug and Curb Loafers hibernating the streets were alive with snappy, happy people whose feet were full of ginger. They were hurrying to answer Constitution ads and business all along the line was fine.

Constitution Want Advertisers got their share also. If you advertised a warm room, room and hot water always, hog, hominy and hot biscuits it's a cinch you filled them. If you didn't, do so at once. Telephone Main 5000 or Atlanta 5001, ask for the Want Ad Department. An expert will write you ad.

Mrs. Eaton in Jovial Mood as Medical Experts Swear Admiral Was Killed by Repeated Doses of Arsenic.

ALLEGED THAT POISON
WAS PUT IN EATON'S TEA

Witnesses Swear Mrs. Eaton Accused Admiral of Flirting, Said He Was Crazy and Wished He Was Dead.

Plymouth, Mass., October 20.—Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton died from poison, at least one dose of which was administered within six or eight hours of his death, during which time, testimony showed, he was unconscious.

This, the statement of medical experts, was the principal evidence introduced by the government in its effort to support the charge that the admiral came to his death at the hands of his wife, Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, now on trial for her life.

That Mrs. Eaton had many times said that she wished that her husband was dead, was the statement made by the witnesses stand today by Henry M. Bates, of Rockland, who knew the family in 1910.

Mrs. Eaton Breaks Into Laughter.

The courtroom was crowded during the afternoon, mostly by women. Many were turned away. Mrs. Eaton still maintained, to a large extent, the composure which she has manifested so far during the proceedings. Occasionally during the medical testimony she bit her lips and again broke out in laughter during the testimony of acquaintances.

Testimony as to the finding of poison in the admiral's body and indications as to the time and manner of its administration, was given by Professor W. F. Whitney and Professor William B. Balch, both of the Harvard Medical School. These experts, retained by the government, had analyzed the contents of the admiral's stomach, and found a "pure white arsenic" was found in the stomach, and that it was thrown off from the admiral's system before death, according to the testimony of the witnesses.

Called Husband Insane.

A letter written by Mrs. Eaton to Professor Whitney in 1909, while the chemist was examining the digestive organs of an adopted child of the Eatons, who had died suddenly, was introduced.

The writer said in part:

"Will you kindly inform me how much longer it will be before you can state exactly what my dear little healthy child died of? I am here alone in this isolated place with my husband, Admiral Eaton, whom I know to be a dangerous insane man."

Now, please search for foreign poisons as he has talked to me freely about foreign poisons, and he has all the trappings of a madman, and I am being choked by a man who would be hard to detect. He has been planning death all day long, and I am powerless, and I trust on the finding of poison to have him examined for insanity.

Both Professors Whitney and Balch admitted that the presence of a large quantity of arsenic had been accepted by experts as an indication that the poison was self-administered.

District Attorney Albert Barker, in red-hot examination of the testimony to show that the poison might equally well have been administered by some other person, it is the contention of the government that poison was given the admiral in tea and other beverages by his wife.

The defense failed today to secure any confirmation of their contention that the admiral used intoxicants freely, and then resorted to drugs to beverage by his wife.

Dr. Wells, of Rockland, a friend of the Eatons, testified to having stayed at the Eaton home for three months in 1912. Mrs. Eaton believed the admiral was insane, and complained that he was always flitting about with girls and women. Mrs. Driscoll said that while she was at the Eaton home the admiral's habits were regular and orderly.

She Wished Admiral Was Dead.

Henry M. Bates, of Rockland, a friend of the Eaton family, testified that Mrs. Eaton had expressed a wish at various times that the admiral was dead. She asked Bates, the witness continued, to come to the Eaton home, and warned him "to be prepared to protect himself." Following this advice he carried a pistol, which, he said, he found no occasion to use. He testified that Mrs. Eaton said, "Do not let the admiral get behind you," remarking that she thought the admiral "wasn't right in his head."

Charles Hill, a neighbor of the Eatons in Assinippi, testified that he was told by Mrs. Eaton that she went to a doctor in an attempt to have the admiral declared insane. "But, Mr. Hill said, 'Mrs. Eaton told me that if anybody was crazy it was she.'"

She Favored Use of Poison.

From Mr. E. Shurtliff, of South Weymouth, a tradesman, came testimony that Mrs. Eaton had said that the admiral placed poison in his tea at a theater party in 1910 in Boston.

Mr. Shurtliff added that Mrs. Eaton appeared to be so afraid that the admiral would poison the family food that she had extra locks attached to the pantry door at their summer home in Weymouth.

Mrs. Katherine Griffin, of Boston, testified that while employed as a housekeeper in May, 1912, in the Eaton home Mrs. Eaton had accused her of making the admiral sick, of taking advantage of him because he was crazy and of taking all his money.

"Mrs. Eaton has a bad temper," the witness concluded.

Assistant District Attorney Katzmann stated tonight that the government expected to rest its case Thursday. The defense, it was learned, may finish its presentation of evidence by Saturday night or Monday forenoon.

Young Girl Leaves Schoolroom
To Go to the Marriage Altar

MRS. J. R. HARRIS.

Didn't Ask Consent of the Bride's Parents Because They Were Afraid of Refusal on Account of Age.

"We wanted to get married right away, and, knowing that my parents would object account of my age, we didn't ask them, but got married and asked them afterward," said pretty little Mrs. J. R. Harris, age 16 years, ingeniously explaining to a reporter for The Constitution how she ran away from the Williams Street school, where she was a pupil in the eighth grade, Monday afternoon and eloped with Harris, who is 18 years of age, and an employee of the Lowry company, 41 East Alabama street.

The marriage is the culmination of one of the prettiest boy and girl romances ever revealed in Atlanta. It appears that the young couple have been "keeping company" for more than a year, and each declares that the other is the only person for whose company they ever cared.

Convinced that Mr. and Mrs. G. L. McMillan, the girl's parents, would object to the match on the score that the bride was too young to wed, when young Harris called on her at her home, 112 Simpson street, Sunday night, they planned to meet Monday afternoon and have the knot tied. Accordingly, when Miss Jean left the Williams Street school Monday afternoon, she hurried home, and, donning another suit, repaired with all speed to the corner of Whitehall and Hunter streets, the appointed trysting place.

At 4 o'clock the young elopers were on the car to Marietta, where they were made one at 4:45 o'clock by a justice of the peace. The newlyweds went directly to the home of Harris' sister, Mrs. E. P. Atkins, 670 Ashby street, where they will, for the present, make their home.

Never Saw Him Again.

"Shortly after that I was told that he had left his wife and had gone away. I never saw him again."

"No, he never worked for me around here. He didn't even loaf around here, as has been said. How he connected my name in this affair is queer, but I believe the man is simply crazy."

Shirley is well known in business circles of Atlanta. His associates speak highly of him and laugh at the statement of Fisher concerning him with any crime.

Shirley is married and has two children. He lives on 20 Ponders avenue just around the corner from his furniture store.

Ex-Football Star Vainly Suffers Mutilation to Keep Peters From a Live Wire.

Malden, Mass., October 20.—Samuel Peters, a Providence, was killed and John A. Hurley, a former Bowdoin college football captain, will probably lose an arm as a result of contact with a live wire tonight.

A second death of the crew of the steamer George T. Hawley, running between Providence and Savannah, was returning from a visit to friends when he was killed by a live wire. John A. Powell, of Griffin, Ly-ing at Death's Door as Result of Accidental Shot.

Griffin, Ga., October 20.—(Special.)—Mrs. Fidelity Kincaid, Sr., while trying to get from her 15-year-old grandson, John A. Powell, a supposedly empty revolver of 38-caliber, last night shot the boy in the back, the bullet severing the backbone and causing paralysis of the lower extremities. The bullet wound will probably prove fatal, as the physicians give little hope of young Powell's recovery.

Since the shooting occurred Mrs. Kincaid has been confined to her bed with nervous breakdown.

DREADNOUGHT TEXAS
ON ACCEPTANCE TRIAL

Norfolk, Va., October 20.—The dreadnought Texas, the latest and one of the most powerful vessels of the American navy, just completed at Newport News, passed out the Virginia capes today for Rockland, Maine, to undergo her official acceptance trials. The Texas will be turned over to the government in about two months. She was manned in part when she sailed today by officers and men from the battleship South Carolina, now here.

Rosser and Arnold Show by Their Action in Turning Mysterious Witness Over to Officers That They Have No Faith in His Story—His Wife, His Brother and His Sister Declare Their Disbelief—His Wife Is Suing Him for Divorce—His Long Police Record Is Exposed by the Department.

Police headquarters is in a ferment over the exciting turn taken last night in the case of Ira W. Fisher, the mysterious "witness" in the Mary Phagan murder, who has been placed under arrest on a warrant charging criminal libel, sworn out by the man he accuses.

He is being held as one of a number of men who police officials say will be arrested within a short time on warrants charging conspiracy to blackmail. One will be issued some time today against a Birmingham man, it is said, who went with Fisher when he later told his first story to Chief Bodeker.

Two others will be sworn out, it is stated, against Atlanta men who have been associated with Fisher. This decision was reached about 9 o'clock as a result of action taken by the chief of detectives, who faced Fisher with the man he accuses, J. C. Shirley, a prosperous furniture dealer, of 809 Marietta street.

Without the blink of an eyelash, Fisher faced his man, reciting practically the same story he had told the chief of police in Birmingham. He sat in the office of the detective chief at headquarters. Shirley faced him stolidly. When Fisher had finished his narrative, Shirley arose from his seat, walked toward his accuser and cried:

"You lie, you skunk, you lie!"

FISHER PLACED IN CELL

Fisher was then taken downstairs, where he was placed in a cell. He seemed not to mind the imprisonment. "I expected it," he said, "when I decided to tell the truth. I will suffer a lot. That was taken into consideration when I consented to come to Atlanta." These remarks were addressed to a reporter for The Constitution, who had heard him face Shirley with his story.

Shirley is being represented by Charles J. Graham, an Atlanta attorney, with offices in the Kiser building, who was counsel for Newt Lee in the famous trial of Leo Frank. It is at Graham's advice that the furniture dealer will issue the proposed warrants against the other men who are said to be in the alleged conspiracy to blackmail him.

The detectives say Fisher was caught in a material lie last night, when they investigated one of his statements. In telling his story, he said he had driven with Shirley to an address on Bellwood avenue, the home of Mrs. William A. Holloway, where Shirley had delivered a bureau. Detective Starnes went to the residence in an automobile.

Mrs. Holloway, whose name had been given by Fisher, said she had never purchased wares from Shirley and that she did not even know him. Furthermore, she said, she had not bought a bureau in several years. Fisher,

BLINDED BY STORM,
FIVE PERSONS WALK
IN FRONT OF AUTOS

Cleveland, Ohio, October 20.—Blinded by the driving rain and a thirty-six mile wind, five persons walked in front of automobiles tonight and two of them received fatal injuries. Miss Mary Costello, 45 years of age, was thrown against the curb and her skull fractured. She died on the way to a hospital. William Kepp, 50, also thrown against a curb, sustained scalp wounds, a broken leg and internal injuries. Shortly before midnight the rain changed to snow and then to sleet, which froze as it fell.

White Man in Charge
Of Government Building;
First Time in History

For the first time within the history of Atlanta the federal building a white man—and a member of one of Georgia's old families—is now taking care of the government structure during eight hours of the twenty-four.

Benjamin M. McDough, of Fayetteville, named last week by Collector Black as watchman of the federal building, came on duty yesterday morning at 8 o'clock to exercise police jurisdiction over the governmental structure until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, eight hours being the time of service, when he was succeeded by Jackson McHenry, one of the old guards.

Collector Blacklock some weeks ago preferred charges against the three negro watchmen, giving each an opportunity to resign. Paul Johnson declined to fight the charges and sent in his resignation, and Collector Blacklock named Mr. McDough to the vacancy. Both McHenry and Macon have declined to resign, but it is only a question of a few days when action will be taken by the department in Washington which will vacate their places.

PEOPLE NEED BIBLE, SAYS SECRETARY BRYAN

Never Was a Time When They Needed the Scriptures as at Present, He Says.

Washington, October 20.—"There never was a time when the people needed the interpretation of the Bible more than they do at present," said Secretary Bryan tonight, in addressing the delegates to the Women's Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church, in session here. "and," the secretary added, "there is not a community which cannot be purified, redeemed and improved by a better knowledge and larger application of the Bible to the daily life. No money that is invested pays so large a dividend as money that is spent for the moral uplift of the community." Mr. Bryan strongly advocated higher education of the young men and women of the country. "I am inclined to believe," he said, "that we have overestimated the value of mental training and underestimated the value of the heart's development. A good heart can use a very dull mind and make that mind serviceable to society. A mind, however brilliant, but a bad heart cannot make use of a mind, with both foreign and home missionary work.

At today's session the society elected Mrs. W. P. Therkild, wife of Bishop Therkild, of New Orleans, president.

Snow and Sleet at Rome.

Rome, Ga., October 20.—(Special.)—A light snowfall, the earliest on record for Rome since the local weather station was established, fell here this morning. Before it had whitened the ground the fall changed to sleet, and frost is predicted for tonight. Reports from the mountain counties to the north of Rome state that the snowfall was heavier there.

ELEVEN BLIND TIGERS TRAPPED AT GRIFFIN

Griffin, Ga., October 20.—(Special.)—Assisted by the police force of the city, Sheriff Hutson, of Spalding county, has succeeded in trapping a gang of eleven blind tigers as follows: Will Rhodes, Cephus Adams, Finkey Head, Cliff Skipper, Jesse Glazier, Isaiah Chapman, Ed Miller, James Fuller, Eleanor Bell, Polite Malone and Paul Clements.

Paul Clements, the last arrested, was taken off the Southern train here last night and lodged in jail. For some time he has been playing his stomach on the train, and has been under suspicion. Last night as the train was standing at the depot he fell into the trap laid for him, and was caught in the act of making change for whiskey just sold. Will Rhodes, the chief of the gang, and against whom five cases have been charged, was for time out on a $2,000 bond. Today his bondsmen surrendered him, and he was placed in jail to await trial in December.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" STRAIGHTEN YOU UP

When Headachy, Bilious, Constipated, Stomach Sour, Breath Bad.

Get a 10-cent box now. Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out tonight and keep them out with Cascarets. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach. Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour, fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great. A Cascaret tonight straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never gripe or sicken.

"CAN'T DEPEND ON STORY IF IRA WAS DRINKING"

"If Sober, He Was Telling the Truth," Declares Brother of Frank Witness.

Rome, Ga., October 20.—(Special.)—If my brother, Ira W. Fisher, was drinking when he told that story about the Phagan murder, no dependence can be placed in what he says, but if he was sober, he is telling the truth. When on a spree he imagines the wildest sort of things, but when he is himself he won't tell a lie. These are the words of Marion L. Fisher, of Rome, who is a trusted employee of the Holder Coal and Lumber company, after reading The Constitution's story of the latest developments in the Phagan case.

Ira W. Fisher is known here as the black sheep of a respectable family. He came to Rome when a lad of 8 from Murray county, where he was born. He lived here for about twenty years and left for DuPont's ears ago. He married there and went to Atlanta, and from there had presumably gone to Clarksville, Tenn. His relatives here were surprised to learn that he was the "mysterious stranger" in the Phagan case, as they did not even know he was in Birmingham.

A Periodical Drunkard. He was a stationary engineer by trade, but works only a part of the time. He is a periodical drinker and when drinking wanders about the country. He has been all over the United States and his family have spent thousands of dollars in efforts to reform him. According to his brother's statements he is like a madman when drinking and tells Munchausen-like stories of railroad wrecks, train robberies, attempted assassinations, etc.

His habits have caused his domestic life a storm in a year ago. His wife had him arrested on a charge of assault with intent to murder. He was probably just one of his wild yarns. He will stick to it and add to it as long as he is drunk, but if he has been sober, he will admit and will repudiate his story just as soon as he gets really sober, have said and these spells many times and know just how he acts.

His brother says, "It all depends on what shape Ira is in. If he was drunk when he told that story in Birmingham it is probably just one of his wild yarns. He will stick to it and add to it as long as he is drunk, but if he has been sober, he will admit and will repudiate his story just as soon as he gets really sober, have said and these spells many times and know just how he acts."

He was distressed at the publicity given the matter, but talked freely to The Constitution representative, saying that he realized the gravity of the situation and felt it his duty to throw what light he could upon the matter. He says he will go to Atlanta willingly if he can be of any service to the officers in clearing the matter up or to his brother.

with his nomination. He walked up and down his office in the mansion, smoking a cigar, smiling and telling how he intended to fight his enemies to the last ditch. He was called to call to chairs and began to tell how he regarded his removal as a possible real blessing in disguise.

Sulzer Sort of an Indian.
"The Indians declare," he said, "that everything is for the best. I'm pretty much of an Indian myself. I've been out west fourteen times. Sometimes I think that's where I belong. People out there have written me since I started this fight against Tammany that if I were among them they would send me to the United States senate. Maybe they would. I reckon I belong out there. I don't seem to get on very well in this effete east."

"But I started to say that I thought maybe my removal was for the best. What could I do in the governor's chair now? Not a thing. I can do a lot in the assembly and other places. I can carry out my reforms there. I tried to carry them out in the governor's chair."

He was silent for a moment, walking the length of the room. Suddenly he stopped, closed his eyes and said: "Yes, sir; I tried so hard that I lost my job."

There were simultaneous rings at the door and telephone bells. People were beginning to call and congratulate him. He prepared to retreat.

"I'll see you here in January," he said, and he disappeared into his study with the injunction that he be not disturbed.

Mrs. Sulzer Delighted.
When Mrs. Sulzer heard that the progressives planned to nominate her husband, she rushed joyously to him with the news.

"Isn't it wonderful!" she said. "He could sweep the entire east side for any office he wanted. He can go back to congress from his old district any time."

"We are buried under the mass of telegrams and letters we are receiving from our old home district. The Jews have been taking straw votes in the synagogues and everybody is for him."

SUDDENLY IN ATHENS
Athens, Ga., October 20.—(Special.)—Abraham Faulk, aged 80 years, died this morning at the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. Max Melick, while on a visit here. He was found on the floor of his room in a dying condition. He had been for near half a century a resident of Savannah, where he had a wide circle of relatives and many descendants. Four generations were present in the house when he died—his daughter, his granddaughter and his little great-granddaughter.

He was the father of Washington Faulk, prominent in business in Savannah, and had other sons and daughters.

The remains, accompanied by a funeral party, left this evening over the Central for Savannah, where, after the body shall lie in state for a day, it will be conveyed to Charleston for the funeral and burial.

Mr. Faulk had been in Athens for only four or five days.

tion of this city, was made tonight at a dinner held jointly by representatives of the two organizations. The campaign will begin November 10 and continue for two weeks.

Three-fourths of the fund, if raised, will go to the women's organization and the rest to the men's. Funds will be devoted to erecting new buildings, including a new central branch for women, at a cost of $600,000. Charles S. Ward, secretary of the international committee of the Young Men's Christian association, will be in charge of the campaign.

Among those identified with the movement are George W. Perkins, Henry P. Davison, William Fellowes Morgan, Mrs. Morgan, Miss Grace H. Dodge and Mrs. James S. Cushman.

PLEAS OF NOT GUILTY IN COTTON CORNER CASE
New York, October 20.—Eugene B. Seales, of Texas, and Frank B. Hayne and William P. Brown, of New Orleans, entered tentative pleas of not guilty today to the superseding indictment accusing them of having operated a corner in cotton in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. They were given ten days to demur or take other action and were released on $2,000 bail each. The defendants were originally indicted with James A. Fatten, of Chicago, who pleaded guilty and was fined $4,000. The new indictment, which included Colonel Robert M. Thompson as a defendant, was drawn to conform to a decision of the United States supreme court in the matter.

POLICE GET RAISE, BUT FIREMEN LOSE

Bill Providing for Increase for Members of Chief Cumming's Force Goes Back to Salary Committee.

The "firemen's salary" bill, providing for an increase of approximately $5,000 a year for all officers of the fire department, excepting Chief W. B. Cumming, was sidetracked by council yesterday afternoon.

The police bill, recommended by the police commission and offered by Councilman A. R. Colcord, was adopted. The police bill increases salaries almost $6,500, and becomes effective after January 1, 1914.

The firemen's bill was referred to the salary committee, of which Alderman John S. Candler is chairman, with the prospect of being held up until the next meeting of council.

With the vote 10 against 10, Mayor Pro Tem, James E. Warren cast the vote which prevented the firemen's bill going to a vote on final adoption.

Not Opposing Firemen. "I am not antagonistic to the firemen," Mayor Pro Tem, Warren said. "It seemed to me that a majority of the members of council did not understand the measure, and I voted to send it to the committee in order that it might be threshed out."

Councilman Claude Mason offered a motion urging the salary committee to make a report on the bill at the adjourned meeting of council which will be held Thursday afternoon. The motion was lost when Chairman Candler stated that he would be engaged in court several days this week, and intimated that he did not believe it possible to get the committee together.

Friends of the firemen stubbornly resisted the motion to delay the progress of the measure.

Alderman I. N. Hagsdale, chairman of the board of firemasters, explained that the measure was drafted to put the firemen on the same salary basis as policemen. He made a strong appeal against delaying the bill.

Aldermen F. J. Sprattling, John S.

Candler and T. J. Kelly and Councilman Orville Hall objected to the adoption of the ordinance, excepting Alderman Candler, explaining that he did not understand the bill and wanted comparative statements showing the salaries of the officers of the police and fire departments.

Police Keep Increase. After the firemen's bill had been sidetracked, a move was made to have the police bill referred to the same committee, but, as the bill had been adopted by general council, there was no way of taking it from the table.

Under the police bill the salaries of policemen only are increased, as follows: First year patrolmen, $175 a month; second year, $225, and third year, $300.

The firemen's bill seeks to restore the officers of the fire department to the salaries they received up to the time when the ordinance was adopted. The cut was made because of the money stringency of 1907, during the administration of Mayor H. H. Jones.

The schedule fixed in the firemen's bill is as follows: Captains, $1,500; lieutenants, $1,200; drivers, $1,100; engineers, $1,320; stokers, $1,140; superintendents of fire alarm, $1,300; chiefs of fire alarm, $1,300; assistant chiefs, $1,750; laddermen and hosemen (first year), $75 per month; second year, $85, and third year, $95.

It might be said that the only real increase is in the salaries of the assistant chiefs, hosemen and runners. To the second assistant chief's salary is restored $100 a year and the third assistant chief $150 a year.

"BOSS" MURPHY ASKS FOR GRAND JURY PROBE

Tammany Leader Resents the Charges Made Against Him by John Purroy Mitchell.

New York, October 20.—Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany hall, demanded today a grand jury investigation of charges alleged to have been made by John Purroy Mitchell, fusionist candidate for mayor, to the effect that the democratic organization leaders were colonizing voters for use on election day.

A letter from Mr. Murphy demanding such investigation was placed before the grand jury by Judge Malone, of the court of general sessions.

"I request that you immediately submit to the grand jury now sitting this matter," says the letter, "so that prompt action may be taken to investigate the charges made by Mr. Mitchell, and, if they are substantiated, not to prosecute the offenders to the full extent of the law."

"Charges of this sort recur in each succeeding campaign, but heretofore they have been made anonymously, and it seems to me desirable that they should be investigated, that the truth may be known. I include herewith a clipping quoting Mr. Mitchell, and I place myself entirely at the disposal of yourself and the grand jury to answer any charges Mr. Mitchell may make."

"It need not be said by the court, gentlemen, that the subject matter of this letter is important," said Judge Malone to the grand jury. "If the report referred to in this communication is correct, it is a specific charge against another of a serious offense against the law. The court directs you to take up at once this grave public matter."

ABSENT SENATORS CALLED TO CAPITAL

Washington, October 20.—Absent senators were notified tonight to return to Washington at once for the debate on the "seaman's servitude" bill, which is to be voted on Thursday. The action of the senate was delayed tonight because of the absence of a quorum, all efforts of senate employees failing to bring out enough members to enable the senate to do business.

Senator La Follette insisted that absent senators should be recalled so that the seaman's bill might be acted on. Its provisions increasing the safety

Physician Tells How To Grow Hair

A Well-Known Physician and Newspaper Correspondent Tells How to Promote the Growth of the Hair.

A well-known physician who has made a careful study of the hair recently made the following statement: "It is comparatively easy to stop the hair from falling out, promote its growth and banish dandruff. The following simple recipe, which can be made at home: To 7 oz. of water add a small box of Barbo Compound, of bay rum and 1/2 oz. of glycerine. Apply it to the scalp with the finger tips two or three times per day. It is not only excellent as a scalp and hair tonic but it darkens faded, streaked, gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Use it myself and have no hesitancy in recommending it to my patients. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost."

Education and the Church.

Under the auspices of the general board of religious education a mass meeting was held tonight in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. The Rt. Rev. Daniel Sylvester Tuttle, bishop of Missouri, and president of the board of the church, conducted the services and there were addresses on the general topic, "Religious Education and the Church."

The Rt. Rev. Charles H. Brent, D. D., bishop of the missionary district of the Philippine Islands, arranged the public school system and the United States with regard to religious training. The bishop said that the effort to start teaching of sex hygiene in the schools was a recognition that "there is and has been in our public schools and higher institutions of learning a moral failure beyond a degree that should be expected."

He, however, condemned the science of eugenics as generally taught, and said that the church should be cautious about allowing children to be taught by any men, no matter how clever, on such subjects.

"There are things," he said, "to be taught by the parents, truths to be learned from the holy lips of a mother and in the sanctity of the home."

HEAVY MEAT EATERS HAVE SLOW KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat if You Feel Backache or Have Bladder Trouble.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become over-worked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delicious effervescent little water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clear and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

FRANK'S NEW TRIAL HEARING TOMORROW

Solicitor Hugh Dorsey Will Probably Turn Over His Affidavits Today to Attorneys for Defense.

With the hearing of Leo M. Frank's motion for a new trial due to start tomorrow, attorneys for both the state and the defense are still hard at work putting the final touches to their sides. Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey and Attorney Leonard Haas held a lengthy conference Monday and will probably meet again Tuesday. They are going over together many of the points in the brief of the defense, hoping to expedite matters.

Solicitor Dorsey stated Monday night that he had not yet exhibited copies of his affidavits to the defense, but might do so Tuesday. The affidavits attacking A. H. Henslee and M. Johnning, jurors accused of bias, have already been made public, and on Monday two additional affidavits against Juror Henslee were given out.

Leon Harrison in one affidavit declares that he heard Mr. Henslee express bias in regard to the factory superintendent, whom he afterwards voted to convict of the murder of Mary Phagan. The other affidavit was from Frank Lehman, in which he reiterates his charges of bias against Mr. Henslee and replies to the juror's denials of the accusation.

The state has prepared affidavits showing the good character of both Jurors Henslee and Johnning, and has investigated the records of those attacking them. The defense has prepared for this by securing affidavits showing the good character and standing of the makers of their sensational affidavits.

While the case appears from all sides sure to be taken up Wednesday before Judge L. S. Roan, who presided at the trial, it is believed that it will last through several days. In the event that the state loses, preparations will be made for a new trial as early as possible. In case the defense should be denied a new trial by Superior Judge Roan, then the case will go to the supreme court.

COURTROOMS CLOSE ON ACCOUNT OF COLD

Fulton county courtrooms were deserted Monday by all who could get away. The steam heat, supplied under a regular contract, had not been turned on, and Judges John T. Pendleton and W. D. Ellis, of the superior court, and H. M. Reid, of the city court, adjourned in short order. Judge George L. Bell, with the Whitehall street injunction on his hands, accepted County Attorney L. Z. Rosser's offer and held court in Mr. Rosser's private office in the Grant building.

In the old city hall, Deputy Clerk Clark Lewis, hired for home shortly after noon, and Deputy Clerk T. H. Jeffries sat around in a winter overcoat a short while longer and then followed suit.

In the Throver building, clerks in the sheriff's and the ordinary's offices shivered at their work, as did those in the office of the clerk of court and the county commission.

Oil heaters were pressed into service and, in many instances, electric lights were turned on, and the employees warmed numbered fingers this by pressing them against the light bulbs. Heat is promised for Monday by Kirby Smith, chairman of county commissioners, who ordered on Monday that the heat be turned on as soon as possible.

BALL GAME IS PLAYED BY CIRCUS ELEPHANTS

Unique Sight Will Be Offered Atlantans in the Barnum & Bailey Performance.

No animal is so intimately and affectionately associated in the popular mind with the circus as the elephant, and probably none is more sagacious. Thus, appropriately, the management of the Barnum and Bailey circus, coming to Ponce de Leon park next Monday for two performances, turned to Harry J. Mooney, chief elephant trainer, to provide something out of the familiar routine as a feature of the season. The result is the only baseball game of its kind ever played and the most convulsively ludicrous of the season. The result is a pitcher, batter and glove and masked catcher—who enter into the sport as keenly enthusiastic as human contestants.

Pilot, the batter, hits a foul, starts for first base, and returns reluctantly at the umpire's command. He strikes ineffectively and allows three bad balls to pass. The pitcher and catcher hold a whispered conference over the critical situation. Pilot swats the next ball pitched, drops his bat and is off. First, second and third bases are successfully passed, but, alas! the catcher awaits him at home, ball in trunk. Pilot makes a tremendous slide, is called out, and is led off the field shilly tripping his rage at the decision.

Mooney worked tirelessly with his ponderous pupils all last winter, and it is a most convincing demonstration in the annals of animal training, veterans declare, of the wonder-works of skill, patience and perseverance.

MILL HANDS STRIKE.

200 Hands Walk Out of Fulton Bag and Cotton Mills.

Two hundred employees of the Mill No. 2, of the Fulton Bag and Cotton mills, are on strike today following a disturbance last Saturday between an assistant superintendent and a mill hand, in which the superintendent was all but assaulted.

When the mills opened Monday morning the men in Mill No. 2 refused to go to work unless the assistant superintendent of the plant was discharged, and the employee who attacked him was reinstated. The mill authorities refused to consider the request, and ordered the workers to leave the mill premises. Officers were called from the police barracks, who cleared the crowd. No cases were made against the strikers. The mill management declared Monday afternoon that the men who wished to come back to work might do so at once, but no offers of arbitration had or would be made to the men who walked out of their positions.

FAST MOTORCYCLE RACE SLATED FOR THE 'DROME

"Bill" Jones, the "hard-luck" auto driver, has turned to the motorcycle for diversion. This colored speed merchant will race a fast field of dusky skinned motorists on Thursday afternoon at the Motordrome. It is anticipated that there is a little hot money up on the race which will be a many-sided affair.

Jones, the Wilson brothers, of New Orleans; L. L. Brown, Jesse Hawkins, Bill Griggs and Will McClain, all well-known negro riders, have entered the race, and from advance notices sent out by Manager S. W. Ross, the affair will be a speed event not soon to be forgotten.

Tickets have been placed on sale for the race at 210 Auburn avenue.

COUNCIL AUTHORIZES ANGRY SEWER WORK

Alderman James Maddox Says He Will Hold Resolution Up in Aldermanic Board.

Despite the vigorous protests of Councilmen Claude Ashley and Albert Thomson, council yesterday approved the resolution of the sewer committee and bond commission authorizing work on the Angier avenue sewer.

Chairman Fletcher Quillian outlined the project to council, explaining that the outlet of the sewer is in the neighborhood of the Ponce de Leon amusement grounds where thousands of Shriners will be camped during the coming convalescence. Both members of the fourth ward delegation opposed starting work on the Angier sewer. They declared that the work would necessitate the removal of part of the convicts from the Butler and Highland avenue sewers, and would absorb some of the $25,000 which the bond commission has for carrying on that work.

Alderman James W. Maddox stated that he will hold the resolution up in the aldermanic board in an effort to defeat it.

SUPREME COURT OF GA.

Arguments were heard in the cases of State of Georgia v. Georgia Railway and Power company, and vice versa, from Rabun. The criminal docket will be in order for argument of cases on Tuesday, and the civil docket will be subject to call on Wednesday.

T. M. A. Moves Clubrooms.

A permit was granted to the Theatrical and Mechanical association to move its club rooms from Forsyth near Walton streets to Marietta near Fairlie. The club petitioned the police committee for authority to make the change and after an investigation among the business men in the vicinity of the proposed new quarters, the committee made a favorable report. The officers of the club are well known, and the club itself enjoys a splendid reputation.

SUPREME COURT HEARS TALLULAH FALLS CASE

By special request of the attorney general, the supreme court yesterday heard argument in the case of the state against the Georgia Railway and Power company. The state is seeking to recover Tallulah Falls, which is being used by the defendant company to generate electric power. In addition to Attorney General Felder, Edgar Watkins and R. C. Ellis argued the case for the state. Alex C. King and Charles T. Hopkins made the argument for the power company. The case was first tried at the spring term of Rabun superior court, at Clayton, with Judge J. B. Jones presiding, at which time a verdict was given against the state.

MANY CHANGES MADE IN CITY POSITIONS

Council yesterday confirmed the appointment of Tom Montgomery as water meter reader in the water department, to succeed M. Browning, resigned. Harry Morgan was appointed to the position of inspector to fill the place vacated by Montgomery. Both men are esteemed employees of the water department. R. A. Burnett, park commissioner from the third ward, sent his resignation to council, explaining that he has removed to another ward. The third ward delegation in council have no agreed as to who will succeed to the vacancy. The resignation of T. B. Gay as a member of the board of trustees of Carnegie library was accepted.

We Drive a Nail and Hang a Fact on It

We are just entering the busiest season of the whole year—which is another way of saying, that the time of the year has come when the good people in and about Atlanta are going to spend large sums for their own furnishings and for their homes, larger perhaps than in many years.

It is well to stop a moment and consider how and where YOU are going to spend YOUR money.

The finances of the country are in a healthy condition, things are "looking up" throughout America. In this section of the south they are "looking up" very high.

This means that manufacturers are taxed to meet the great demands of a great nation able and out to buy whatever it wants.

Right merchandise is hard to get at right prices. It is the old principle of supply and demand still working away as old principles have a habit of doing. For we do not think any one will deny that these are the present-day conditions.

And when conditions are such, then are merchants put to test.

This is the sharp pointed nail that is easy to drive.

And yet we hear much right now about bargains, about tremendous savings, about cut prices, about great sales.

How is it possible?

Here we are working away with a vengeance, striving with all the means that this long-established organization has acquired, to gather into our store merchandise that measures up to our standard of what it ought to be for the price.

It is taking all our time, all our energy, all our ingenuity to find such merchandise.

The Suits

Our advertisement yesterday morning concerned suits at $25.00.

They are the result of specialization. So are the suits at $32.50, $35.00, $45.00; so are all the suits here.

And there are many. Such a store as this owes its best service to every customer.

And every customer gets it whatever she wishes to pay for her suit.

Suppose you, now, just look into this for your own satisfaction and see if these words about specialization do not fit in with the suit we show (or the coat or dress or fur) at the price you wish to pay.

Test this out.

The Waists

Never have waist styles come in for quite so much interest as they have this season.

The Oriental influence has done wonders.

Waists are rich, glorious affairs right now—or they are an impossible mixture of colors masquerading as Oriental.

The difference lies between the work of the artist and the near-artist.

But the proverbial good taste of Atlanta women will distinguish.

And we leave this waist store, as we present it this season, to her good taste. Test this out.

The Millinery

No store in the South—very few in America outside of New York—has the millinery organization that we have.

Through our connection with Estelle Mershon, 20 East Forty-sixth street, New York, the styles that bloom in Paris one week are in Atlanta a few days after the next week, and, happily, at Atlanta prices.

Test this out.

The Silks

A season of silks!

The Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. Silk Store has expanded its stocks, not only to meet these greater demands, but to take its position as a guide to the women of Atlanta.

The stocks are authoritative in that they are varied and inclusive of all that the silk masters have evolved.

Test this out.

The Knit Underwear

The first rule for picking daisies, we understand, is to go where daisies are.

The same is true of gathering a fine stock of knit underwear.

We went wherever good knit underwear was to be found.

We did not confine our selection to any one or two mills.

We chose from this mill its best, from that mill its best, and so on.

Now Atlanta women may choose the best that is made.

Test this out.

The Blankets

The blanket stock—where things are what they are!

We reason along these lines about blankets—after getting as fine values as are to be got (at every price) why should we practice any other method than to tell our customers what is in this blanket and what is in that blanket?

A contrary statement would not change matters in the least.

And as we have every confidence in the genuine worth of every pair of blankets we own, we are willing to have them judged by what we say they are.

Test this out.

THE MOUNTAIN BOYS CALL.

The purest Anglo-Saxon racial strains in Georgia are found in the Blue Ridge. The mountain barriers that have turned material development away from this principality of the peaks and crags have also kept the race free from weakening or dilution by foreign currents.

The boys and the girls born in this peculiar environment call to the rest of the people of Georgia for aid in securing an education of the practical sort. The story was told in Sunday's Constitution by Isma Dooly, when she contributed a keen and searching analysis of the work being done and to be done by the mountain school of Andrew Ritchie, at Rabun Gap, in the very heart of the mountains.

The people that dwell in the Blue Ridge have, until the past few years, been a people almost forgot. Save when revenue officers raided stills or writers drew upon the "big hills" for tales of romance, little came to the outside world from this great region hedged by mountains. The trails which baffled the summer tourist proved too difficult for the school teacher. The inhabitants lived in a proud isolation, their mode of life and their mental and moral outlook but little changed from generation to generation.

Lately, a new spirit has breathed over the mountains. The mountaineers themselves anxiously beckon the influences of civilization. The folk in the lowlands have awakened to their duty. Schools are penetrating the fastnesses. The Andrew Ritchie school is a typical one, and one of the most achieving.

Unlike many institutions, it does not seek to educate the boy and girl away from his or her environment, or to make them despise the atmosphere in which they were reared. It cultivates, on the other hand, a love for that environment, a love so genuine and candid that it seeks to correct those faults inherited and perpetuated in error. It fits the boy for the intelligent and profitable discharge of those tasks right to his hand. It does the same thing for the girl. It has opened wide a door of opportunity, a door into a new and wonderful world, for hundreds of boys and girls born in the shadow of the peaks.

One of the school's main needs now is more land, that it may extend its activities in the line of cattle raising. No section of the state is more ideally adapted to this industry than is north Georgia. No industry is, right now, of more importance to the state. Georgians generally should hold it a privilege to give substantial indorsement to a school showing such valuable human products.

A GABBY DIPLOMAT.

The public conception of the sense of restraint that should hedge diplomatic officials is violated by the present course of Henry Lane Wilson. The former minister of Mexico is touring the west making broadside attacks upon the state department and, inferentially, the president, for its policy toward Huerta and Mexico.

Mr. Wilson was relieved from office because he was wholly out of sympathy with the Washington view of the Mexican problem. He exhibited blatant indiscretion at the first opportunity by giving out scarehead interviews immediately on his arrival in this country, and before he had talked to President Wilson. His further course has been no more commendable.

It is, of course, the privilege of Americans to speak their minds, especially where quasi-accusations of a personal nature are involved. But it seems that with affairs with Mexico at a tension, patriotism, if not common sense, should inspire in the former representative a willingness to postpone his airing of grievances.

BISHOP NELSON ON THE NEGRO

The American in general as well as the southerner in particular who seeks for a succinct statement of the negro problem and needs of the race will find both in a few sentences recently uttered by Bishop C. K. Nelson, of the Atlanta diocese of the Episcopal church. Bishop Nelson is in attendance in New York at the triennial convention of the Episcopal Church in America. He spoke on the negro problem last Sunday night at a mass meeting at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Here is the keynote to his address, as reported by the Associated Press:

An immeasurable wrong was done when the ballot was given to a people untrained for citizenship. When freedom and franchise were given the negro he then became the ward of the nation. He still needs to be fitted for citizenship. He needs a vitalizing religion. He needs education, but not so much of the sort which some have been trying to give him—the arts and sciences, the classics, romance, languages and music and theology. He needs instruction in honor, righteousness, thrift, truth and purity more than he needs the ballot.

The Constitution has uniformly insisted that the educational trend among the negroes was toward equipping the one negro and almost ignoring the ninety and nine. That is the substance of the reasoning of Bishop Nelson. The colleges and universities devoted to the training of the southern negro have done excellent work. Gradually, their courses are being broadened. Many men and women sent from them have developed into admirable teachers and preachers. They have lifted the morals of negro communities into which they have gone, and in that respect alone have been of distinct missionary value.

But the ninety and nine element among the race—the great representative mass—has not fared so well. The proof is in the present industrial situation of the south as it touches the negro, in the crime rate, in the prevalence of disease and vice and the high death rate. The negro laborer, in city or on the farm, is notoriously unreliable. Domestic service from negroes is become a farce, almost. The matter of securing farm labor is rapidly approaching a crisis. Other tasks for which the negro is fitted, and to the discharge of which he should logically address his efforts, are neglected or half done.

Bishop Nelson spoke a parable when he said the negro needs a "vitalizing religion." As the Constitution has often contended, if the churches of the south would devote to the southern negro one-tenth the missionary effort expended in foreign fields, this ever-vexatious problem would be well on the way to solution. The activity of the churches in this field and the awakening generally of southern legislatures will go far toward meeting the situation. Neither need be urged by motives rising in philanthropy. At the last analysis the work of equipping the negro for the demands of his time is one of self-preservation and self-interest for the southern white people.

A SIGN OF THE SOUTH.

Not in some time has The Constitution encountered evidence that more strikingly illustrates the spirit of Atlanta and of the new south than that contained in a recent news item concerning the Tech night school. Reference was made to the steady growth of the night school in popularity among the young men of the city. Then came the significant statement that many well-known and mature professional and business men of Atlanta had also enrolled for the courses. It was shown that several of them were already engaged in very lucrative callings, but that their bent was toward professions calling for a technical equipment, and that to gain it they were willing to work hard all day, and study several hours at night, side by side with youngsters.

That is the genius that has made and is expanding Atlanta and that is on exhibit in every portion of the southern states today. It is what might be called a constructive restlessness, a discontent that manifests itself in labor and that is bound to bring dividends.

The tendency is also, we think, to be rated as a symptom that the alert man of today recognizes, or is just beginning to recognize, the tremendous dimensions of the south's destiny. He is looking beyond the profit of the moment, and preparing himself to capitalize the opportunity of tomorrow.

If anything is certain in the telescope of the future, it is that Georgia and the south are to become the great manufacturing and industrial empires of the nation. Every condition needed to that end is present. We have virtually all the fundamental raw materials of world commerce, and a virtual monopoly in the biggest of them, cotton. We have the next essential, cheap steam power and almost inexhaustible water-power. We have the climate. We have the space. We have the transportation facilities, and they are being steadily improved. We are fast equipping the ports. We are so situated as to skim the cream of the trade that will spring into being with the opening of the Panama canal.

These clear-eyed Atlantans comprehend the facts. They know the psychological moment is not far off. They are minded to be fitted for it when it arrives. As they work for themselves, they work for the city, the state and the section. For increase the producing power of the individual and you increase the producing power of the state. All over the south the spectacle is being duplicated on varying scales. When grown and successful men study, the south is awake. We see in the strange activity at the Tech one of the most significant signs of the times.

President Wilson isn't using his blackthorn on the bad trusts. In their case he presses the button and lets the dynamite attend to the rest of the business.

Mr. Bryan has been delivering mild lectures to the milkmen. Why not tackle something tough—like dollar-a-pound beef?

Just From Georgia

By FRANK L. STANTON

Mr. Mockingbird's Lonesomeness.
Mister Mockingbird is lonesome—no more blossoms at his breast!

He sits around a-mopin' where the chill frost rims his nest.
I reckon he's a-thinkin' when he glimpses skies so gray.
Of the loneliness of livin' when the home-folks are away.
His voice you never hear now, none answers to his call.
His little ones have left him, just like they leave us all.
He's lost himself a-dreamin' a far-off dream o' spring.
When the love was in his bosom—the love that made him sing.

Perhaps his heart is holding what we hold—all things above:
That memory of Springtime with its dawn of first, sweet love.
Which comes to us at twilight, as we linger here alone—
The roses in a garden spot—the stars Love called his own.

Homeless bird, and homeless heart! But Love, like joy imperiled,
Still sings of Springtime in our dreams when "My friends" are in the world.
And the sweet spring will smile again—bring blossoms to the breast
Of the sad bird in the shadow of its winter-blighted nest.

"Favorite Fiction."
Philosopher Adam Croaker, of The Holton Recorder, classifies the following under the head of "Favorite Fiction":
"The church was dedicated free from debt."

"They shook hands and agreed to bury the hatchet."
"My friends have urged me to become a candidate."

"He held the audience spellbound for more than an hour."
"He was liberal and a great philanthropist and died worth $75,000,000."
"The bride was beautiful and the groom a noble specimen of manhood."

"He had not an enemy in the community."
"His official acts were universally indorsed."

"He never made mistakes."
"She never gossiped about her neighbors."
"He was public spirited and utterly unselfish."

Winter Joys.
Pile the great logs higher—
Joy is still in sight;
Here's a friendly fire
For the wintry night.
Game, report a frowning face,
Still, it warms this fireplace.

Half-forgotten are prices high,
Trouble turns about;
You forget the wintry sky
And the cold without.
Not from grief just now we borrow—
Let him wait until tomorrow!

In the firelight fine we sup—
Mirth and song we raise;
We'll just burn our troubles up—
Pile 'em on the blaze!
Fine, where now the bright flame
Flashes
To see 'em soon—a heap of ashes!

The Business of Editing.
The Normal Bulletin man says it is easy to be an editor; all one has to do is "merely" to be able to write poems, discuss the tariff and money questions, umpire a baseball game, report a wedding, saw wood, describe a fire so that the readers will shed their wraps, make $1 do the work of $10, shine at a dance, measure calico, abuse the liquor habit, test whisky, subscribe to charity, go without meals, wear diamonds, sneer at snobs; overlook scandal, appraise babies, delight pumpkin raisers, minister to the afflicted, lead the disgruntled, fight to a finish, set type, mold opinions, sweep out the office, speak at the prayer meetings and stand in with everybody.

In Plenty Place.
Don't you ever think I reach
The limit of the store;
Bill-o'-fare
And lots to spare—
Pass yer plate for more!

Even for the hungry wolf
Howling at the door
The bone—
So, get yer own
And pass yer plate for more!

Nuggets From Georgia.
Just when Indian summer had promised all her lovers a lock of her golden tresses a snowstorm whitened them and made her look like a wrinkled witch of winter.

We have about reached that comfortable season when we toast our shins before a blazing fire in the cheering belief that God will pity the poor and shelter all the lost lambs of the fold.

All the mountain distilleries are working overtime, but you'll notice that no candidate for office brings that feature forward as a sign of the prosperity he helped to make.

Right Job for Him.
The very first touch of winter provoked the placid poet of The Whitsett Courier to this:

"Snow coming down
And the blast rising higher;
If the devil's in town
Let him keep up the fire!"

New Prosperity Wrinkle.
"By dashing into a well-filled barn on Tuesday last a hell-bent automobile unintentionally scattered prosperity all over that section of town," says a Georgia exchange.

A Story of the Moment

By WAIL MASON,
The Famous 'Pace Post.

SCENTING A PLOT.

"The women of our church are going to have a chicken pie supper this evening," said Fessenden, "and you ought to blow in a quarter with them, Rumblelow. All the men in the neighborhood are going, and I know everybody would be glad to see you there."

"That proposition looks innocent enough on the surface," replied Rumblelow, "but I am satisfied that there's a base plot back of it. The whole business has been got up to humiliate me in one way or another, I expect, for the women have joined hands with the men to drive me out of this community, but the women are going to get left and I will tell them so, with my own tongue."

"I have no doubt that if I went to this chicken pie supper they'd have me wearing a blamed old oilcloth apron, and washing dishes, before I had been there ten minutes. Or they'd have me waiting on the tables, and if I dropped a cheap crockery dish and broke it, somebody would be around with a bill tomorrow morning, and I'd find myself charged up with a priceless piece of Dresden china. That's the way things go in this community. I have to be eternally vigilant, or my name will be Mud. My untutored mind sees plots in clouds and hears them in the wind. And you know why, Fessenden. You've been mixed up in all the conspiracies against me."

"It is true that some time over here two weeks ago, just fairly beaming with peace on earth and good will toward men, and said you wanted to put me next to a good thing. Old Colonel Tulliver, you said, had the finest orchard in this part of the country, and his trees were groaning under the load of delicious apples. There was no market for them, however, so he was giving the surplus away to his friends. 'The Colonel told me,' said you, 'to take all I wanted, and send some of my friends to do the same.' And so just to show that you had the warmest kind of feeling for me, you came over to put me wise."

"I was off my guard that day, or I might have suspected that there was a plot at the bottom of all this. I might have known that pigs would be flying and cows roosting in trees when you went out of your way to do me a good turn. I really don't know why I was so blind, but I hitched up my nose and put a couple of sacks in my buggy and started off to get some of those apples. You told me it wasn't necessary to go to the house. All I had to do was to go into the orchard and help myself, and if anybody asked questions I should tell them that Fessenden sent me."

"Well I went into the orchard and realized at once that I was the victim of another base conspiracy. There weren't more than a dozen apples in the whole shooting match, and they were withered up like last year's prunes. I was standing around looking at the old dead trees and meditating on the perfidy of man, when I heard an earthquake approaching from behind. I looked around and saw a bull that weighed eight tons coming for me with head down and heels in the air. I did some fancy springing, but the bull overtook me and hoisted me about five miles into the air, and when I came down I was fortunate enough to land in an old apple tree. I say fortunate, although most of my bones were dislocated and my head was cracked. I was hanging and snorting around underneath, pawing and bellowing, and daring me to come down for another round."

"Old Colonel Tulliver heard the racket and came down with three hired men, and heased the bull away, and then they pelted me with decayed apples until I got down out of the tree. They accused me of stealing apples, and batted me around with their fork handles, and when I said you told me to help myself, the Colonel said never heard of you before and never wanted to hear of you again. When I got out of that orchard I had to tie myself together with old wires and strings, so I could reach town in one piece. And now you come over here to invite me to a rooster pie blow-out. Well, I won't go."

The Small Author Loses.

(From The New York Post.)
Those who are acquainted with the record of English literary incomes since Chaucer was a court servant will not find it a particularly harrowing fact that, according to a London writer, "not more than fifty British novelists make an average annual income of $5,000."

Indeed, some people will find it a ground for regret that Miss Corelli is said to have made $100,000 in a single year, and Hall Caine twice that. The other happy platoon of an average income of $25,000 or more are, it is said, Wells, Kipling, Garvie, Stapledon, Conan Doyle and Mrs. Ward. Masfield and Noyes are said to flourish on poetry; as to dramatists, we are left to judge only from Shaw's quarrels with the income tax collectors.

These estimates, naturally, are inspired by that striking literary event, Hall Caine's latest publication. Their one significance is that every change affecting English book-selling—sixpenny editions, the growth of the libraries, even social developments like the motor car and the week end—has been in favor of the few big sellers and against the authors with a small, select audience; and similar causes are operating in a similar way in America.

Easy Crops Profitable.

(From Lavonia Times.)
Had it ever occurred to you that the crops which are easiest to grow are the most neglected in this country? Oats can be grown almost without work and yet there are farmers who will neglect to sow and depend on buying food for their stock next spring and summer while they are working a cotton crop. Even a small tract of land, four or five acres, if properly sown, will yield enough oats for two mules to eat while making a crop. This beats buying western corn at $1.25 a bushel, and is much better food for your stock. Go out and sow that oat patch. Let nothing deter you in this effort to grow food for your stock.

The time is coming when corn and oats and hay will not be sold on credit, but on cash. With very little work food-stuffs for a two-horse farm can easily be harvested. Oats followed with peas make excellent crops for the latter for the stock, and for the owner. A farmer cannot buy food for his stock at the present prices for these products and come out ahead of the game. Oats can be grown at from 12 to 25 cents a bushel right in this section. Hay can be grown for almost nothing!

This country will never enjoy the prosperity to which it is entitled till we become a people of sellers instead of a people of buyers, and we must have something to sell every month in the year.

Emerson Had Pie for Breakfast.

(From The London Chronicle.)
Emerson's period of literary production might have been considerably longer had he followed the light breakfast regime advocated by the Lancet. In one of Mr. H. J. Warner's letters to his wife he writes: "We are all human and we all need cheering cups—but no pie at breakfast!" It was pie at breakfast that broke down Emerson prematurely; no human being, however well, can live long and keep his mind unclouded on pie at breakfast. Emerson lost his mind—or memory—a much earlier period than he would have been likely to lose it owing to the vicious habit of pie at breakfast."

The World's Mysteries

WHO WAS "JAMES ORD?"

The story of James Ord and his efforts to establish his identity has almost passed from the memory, and yet during the early part of the last century the story of the Englishman was familiar to Americans generally. There was undoubtedly a mystery hidden somewhere in the life of Ord and he himself always believed that he was a son of George IV of England, born while that king was prince of Wales, his mother being Maria Anne Smythe Fitzherbert, whom George had married in 1785.

Ord's entire life was so surrounded by mystery. He came to this country in 1799 in company with a cockney Englishman, who was supposed to be his uncle. The supposed uncle was given a position as master mechanic in the navy yard at Washington, when the nation's capital was moved from Philadelphia to that city, and in the yard he was popularly known as "Captain Ord."

No one ever learned "Captain Ord's" real name. He had been at one time a humble sailor in the British navy, but through some mighty influence within the English government he secured a remunerative position in the service of the Spanish king, the post of dockyard inspector. After being thus employed for a time he left Spain and went to Georgetown, Guyana, and it is said that no pains were spared to make him a gentleman and a scholar. Once when the lad made inquiry regarding his parents, the uncle replied:

"If you had your rights in England, James, you would be somebody very great. God forgive those who have wronged you, my boy." During this conversation "Captain Ord" told the boy that he was not his uncle at all, and in fact, that they were no relation, but that he was the adopted son of his sister.

James Ord was too young for a serious effort to learn his identity, and one day there came a man to the college to bring him to his foster uncle's bedside. The uncle was dying when the boy arrived and had so nearly passed away that all he was able to say that could be understood was that he had something of the utmost importance to confide in him. He tried to speak further but it was too late.

The boy was returned to the college and placed in the custody of a Maryland priest. Later in life, while searching through papers left by his deceased foster-uncle, he came upon correspondence with another priest, which launched him upon a search for himself, lasting the remainder of a long lifetime.

Among other things James Ord found that the sudden departure of his alleged uncle for Spain had directly followed the fate of his own birth, and that the promotion of the ex-sailor to the position of master mechanic by none other than the Prince of Wales, the negotiations having been carried on by the Widow Fitzherbert.

In 1812 James Ord was influenced, against his inclination, to enlist in the war against England, and not until that struggle was over, and it was too late to protect himself did he come to realize that spies had forced him to this service, being well aware that in British eyes this would be treason which would invalidate any claim that he might make to benefits from the British government.

When he was well on in life he wrote to Mrs. Fitzherbert, but he was unable to obtain a reply from her, although he died believing that she was his mother. This fact was also accepted by the Jesuit fathers of Georgetown college, who in the centenary history of the institution mentioned its luminaries, James Ord, as the son of King George IV.

James Ord lived for a number of years in New York, from there returned to Washington and finally moved to Omaha, where he died at the age of about ninety-seven, leaving several sons and one daughter. He had always believed that the long-delayed sealing of Mrs. Fitzherbert's papers would clear the mystery of his birth. These documents she had left when she died in 1837 to a London bank with the stipulation that the secrets they contained should remain under seal for a long period.

This seal was finally broken in 1905 by order of King Edward VII after the death of James Ord, but the papers found along with her marriage certificate contained no reference to the children alleged to have been born to her and to George IV.

HOW.

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

How—to Smile; How—to Be Serious, How—to Be Content; How—to Be Proud; How—to Be Little; How—to Be Big and Generous with an abundance; How—to face trial times with fortitude and calmness; How—to taste defeat; and How—to drink from the cup of Victory without sighing your fine spirit. Happiness and one of the greatest secrets of Character Strength lie in your ability to interpret, to live, to understand—just How.

If you do not know How, learn How. Back of much failure is the ignorance of How. There is a world of value in knowing How to convert setbacks and repeated failures into big successes later on. For there is constantly increasing power back of it that is sure to be yours if you start out by knowing How. You will then enter your work with daring and confidence, feeling full well that what results is sure to be something worth while.

If you don't know How learn How. How many a man on looking over a piece of work explains that he doesn't know How to go about it, and How to carry it through. But there is always someone somewhere who DOES know How. And to him who does know How and proves it, multitudes remain ever ready to cheer him on and up.

If you do not know How, learn How.

Worship of a Tooth.

(From London Tit-Bits.)
At Kandy, in Ceylon, is kept Buddha's tooth, which is the object of the unbounded reverence of more than 400,000,000 people.

When the holy molar was brought to Ceylon in the sixteenth century, Kandy was only a mountain village. Now thousands of pilgrims go every year to the gorgeous temple where the tooth reposes, bringing gifts of every kind, gold and silver ornaments, coins, jewelry, and even fruit and flowers. The king of Burma and Siam send annual contributions toward the support of this temple that holds the sacred relic, which has a rather strange history.

It is said to have been the left eye-tooth of Buddha, and to have been taken from his ashes 2,500 years ago. For centuries it was the marriage dower going with certain favored princes.

In the fourth century after Christ it was taken from India, then the Malabars secured it. It was afterward captured by the Portuguese and was burned in 1660 by the archbishop in the presence of the viceroy of India.

"Agnes" Still Lives.

(London Daily Sketch.)
It is not generally known that the original from whom Dickens drew his inspiration for Agnes in "David Copperfield" is still living. In a flat just off the Cromwell road, in a delightful early Victorian atmosphere that is the real thing and not achieved by a firm of skillful decorators, lives Miss Georgiana Hogarth. One can trace in this gracious old lady the charm that attracted Dickens, for Miss Hogarth possesses the rare gift of growing old gracefully.

There isn't glory enough in Mexico to go around, so when a man grabs an office only death can pry him loose.

Sulzer has friends who still think that he's good enough for congress.

Huerta isn't even original. That "die, but never resign," business is as old as the Mexican hills.

Sulzer says history will vindicate him. In the meantime it's a long time for a man out of office to wait.

Just when the winter furnace is in and there's coal enough to feed a famine, and you think you have reason for shaking hands with yourself here comes the stern demand for your income tax.

And now congress hopes to work it out on the same line if it takes all winter.

With ex-President Taft on the lecture platform it would have even more weight with the people.

The Colonel says he "left the progressive party on the battlefield." More dead than alive, probably.

VIENNA.

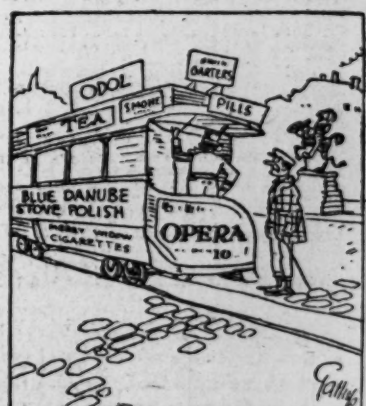

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At God Old Swab."

Vienna is the capital and metropolis of Austria. It was formerly famous principally for its rolls, which must not be confused with the celebrated Dutch roll. However Vienna's press agents have been working nights and Sundays for the past twenty years and have now made it notorious for its beauty and its indifference to early closing hours.

Vienna has 1,500,000 people, none of whom go home until after midnight. Its chief productions are doctors, meerschaum pipes and comic opera. It is about as large as the west side of Chicago, but resembles Chicago in only one respect—it has streets. Vienna is situated on a branch line of the celebrated Danube river and has been there more or less ever since the Romans infested the country in the first century A. D. Vienna, however, got its big start during the Crusades, 700 years ago, when the last place on the way to Jerusalem where a shave, a bath and a good drink could be obtained, and for almost a hundred years the Viennese hotels did the roaring business, getting the Crusaders both going and coming.

Vienna is very old, but it only began to wake up half a century ago. Since then it has filled itself with handsome buildings, handsome women and exceedingly melodious restaurants. It keeps the entire population of the city together with thousands of tourists, busy eight hours a night, listening to the strictly home made music produced in these restaurants, and whenever a waits bearing the Vienna trademark is sent out it becomes popular before the orchestra has reached the first "repeat" mark.

Vienna was originally a small city, completely surrounded by walls, which were battered at various times by such prominent men as Napoleon and the sultan of Turkey. However, some fifty years ago the walls were dug out and the Ringstrasse installed in their places. This is a handsome street, lined with great houses, and is clear so that tourists who attempt to walk from one end of it to the other are frequently rescued by the police on the fifteenth lap.

"Allows its streets cars to wear advertising on the outside."

Vienna is visited each year by hundreds of American physicians, who learn more at the Viennese hospitals than they would in Rochester, Minn., because Vienna is farther away. It claims to be the handsomest city in the world, but it allows its street cars to wear advertising outside, and the American tourist who spends a week trying to go to "Odol" and then finds that is a tooth powder instead of a suburb sometimes criticizes it severely.

"The World Is Too Much With Us."

The world is too much with us; late and soon,
Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers—
Little we see in Nature that is ours;
We have given our hearts away, a sordid boon!

The Sea that bares her bosom to the moon;
The winds that will be howling at all hours,
And are up-gathered now like sleeping flowers,
For this, for everything, for all our tides,
It moves us not—great God, I'd rather be
A pagan, suckled in a creed outworn,
So might I, standing on this pleasant lea,
Have glimpses that would make me less forlorn;
Have sight of Proteus rising from the sea;
Or hear old Triton blowing his wreathed horn.

All the preliminary arrangements for the Virginia-Georgia game Saturday were completed yesterday, and the field will be completed and ready by Wednesday. Both teams arrive Friday.

Virginia Rooters Would Wager $500 On Their Eleven

Virginia rooters and students think so much of their team's chances in the game Saturday with Georgia that they are willing to wager $500 or more on the result.

The following letter received from a Virginia fan is self-explanatory:

"Dick Jemison, Sporting Editor The Constitution: The University of Virginia plays the University of Georgia in Atlanta next Saturday.

"Some of the old Virginia boys here have made up a small purse of $500 which they would like to back the Virginia team with. Knowing the friendly rivalry between Atlanta and this city, we thought that possibly some of the old University of Georgia boys would care to cover same.

"Knowing as I do what good sports the Atlanta men are, I feel some hesitancy in mentioning such a small amount, but should they care to make it larger we could doubtless cover any amount they would care to put up.

"We leave it to you to post the money. Any one can do business for us through you. G. W. Lorraine, Box 23, Station A, Richmond, Va."

WELSH KNOCKED OUT, BUT GIVEN DECISION

Alleged Saylor Dealt English
Champion Foul Blow
in the Groin.

Winnipeg, Man., October 20.—Freddie Welsh, the English lightweight champion, was knocked out in the ninth round of his scheduled 12-round bout with Milburn Saylor, of Indianapolis, here tonight. The referee claimed the knockout was due to a foul blow.

The blow, a stiff one, landed in the groin and sent the English fighter to the floor for the count. Welsh was given the decision by the referee on a foul.

Griffith Beats Bresnahan.

Youngstown, Ohio, October 20.—Johnny Griffith, of Akron, won a decision over Tommy Bresnahan of Omaha, Neb., in their 12-round bout here tonight. Most of the rounds were Griffith's by good margins. In the sixth Griffith sent Bresnahan to his knees with a right cross and repeatedly rushed him to the ropes. In the infighting in the twelfth, Bresnahan again slipped to the mat, but was up in a moment. Bresnahan weighed 136, Griffith 133. Phil Brock, Cleveland, lightweight, challenged the winner, offering a side bet of $1,000.

WINCHESTER

MODEL 1912 20 GAUGE Light Weight Hammerless Repeating Shotgun

This new Winchester is the lightest, strongest and handsomest repeating shotgun made. It weighs only about 5 1/2 pounds, yet it has surpassing strength, as all the metal parts are made of Nickel Steel, having about 50,000 pounds more tensile strength to the square inch than ordinary steel. The receiver is free from screws and unsightly pins to collect rust and dirt and work loose, and its solid breech, closed at the rear, makes it extremely safe. It operates and works with an ease and smoothness not found in similar guns of other makes. It is simple to load and unload, easy to take down, being separated into two parts quickly without tools. For pattern and penetration, it is fully up to the established Winchester standard of shooting quality, which has no superior.

Ask your dealer to show you one, or send to Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Conn., for illustrated circular.

FIRST PHOTO OF VIRGINIA FOOTBALL SQUAD THAT PLAYS GEORGIA AT PONCE DE LEON NEXT SATURDAY

This is the first photo to be printed by any paper of the Virginia football team. The Constitution, through its correspondent, W. R. Pate, at Charlottesville, obtained this photo which was finished Saturday afternoon. It was the first print to be made and although twenty-six other newspapers made bids through their correspondents for the photo, The Constitution's correspondent was the successful one. Other prints of the photo will probably appear later elsewhere, but The Constitution, as usual, is first.

Tech's Strongest Battle Front Will Face Florida Saturday; Sewanee Game Now Object

For the first time this season the Tech Yellow Jackets will present their most formidable battle front to an opposing team when they line up against the University of Florida at Jacksonville next Saturday.

Jane Patten, Jim Preas and Al Loeb, three of the team's stars, who have been out of the game with injuries, are progressing so rapidly that every one is confident that they will be in shape for this game.

Florida has a fairly good team. But the Jackets can defeat them without their three stars. But if they are familiarized themselves with their team's style in actual combat before the November games.

Sewanee is the team that the Jackets are now set for, the game being scheduled for Grant field a week from Saturday. The team will only be kept at its present stride this week, with the faults noticed in the Mercer game erased. Then as soon as the Florida game is out of the way the Jackets will be driven hard for the Sewanee battle.

A new set of signals especially for use against Sewanee were dished out Monday afternoon, and, working secretly behind closed gates, the Jackets will practice faithfully on these all the week and may give them a trial against the Florida team by way of a test.

Signal work, tackling and charging will be the main work for the Jackets this week. They will scrimmage, of course, but the scrimmages will not be as long or as fierce this week as they were last or they will be next week.

Patten and Loeb will work out with the varsity in the signal drill, but they are not going to enter any scrimmage this week, saving themselves for the Florida game. The scrubs fight the varsity as hard as any team they will meet, and it is thought inadvisable to put the injured men in the scrimmages until they are absolutely sound.

That the Jackets are making progress in a manner that is pleasing to their coach and the student body is evidenced in some way, especially in the way they have learned to give interference for the runner and to smash the opposing interference.

As pointed out yesterday, their one weakness is their inability to charge low. With this rectified—and it can be readily—the Jackets' defense is going to look as formidable as its offense, which has been excellent in every game.

The first string lineup is probably settled on with Hayes or Cushman and Preas at ends, Rainey or McCall and Vance at tackles, Means and Lang at guards, Loeb at center, Patten at quarter, Cook and McDonald at halves, and Johnson at full.

Lucas, Montague, Thomason, Fielder, Reifsnider and Smith have first call for end and back substitutions. In the regular men, the only difference being weight. Travick, Alexander, Rivlis, Smeed and Spence are the most likely looking line subs.

faint inkling of the punishment the Commodores were taking.

The left wing of the line looks hopeless, crumpling all to pieces under fierce onslaughts. Askew, the tackle Med, was given a chance and his work, as a whole, was good, but he is dreadfully green and misses many chances for brilliant work on account of his ignorance of the play. Putnam and Murray made a most discouraging showing.

It was in the backfield that the most encouragement was found, for McQueen, as Ammie Sikes' running mate, played nearly up to the form of which McQueen has believed him capable. He sprinted like a quarter man, but was in no sense impressive when hitting the line. All around, he looked better than anyone else that has tried to solve the backfield puzzle.

Boensch's sudden development as a drop kicker gives the Commodores a new asset. His punting all along has been good, but now that his toe can be depended on for shots between the uprights, Vandy can make points even if they are shut off from the goal line. He dropped two, one from the 35-yard line and both went over from sharp angles.

Again the Commodores used only straight football, only attempting a forward pass once, which, by the way, was completed, but this week McGugin will wear his trick work out hunting for new and foxy stuff to spring on Yost, even if the chances for a win over the Wolverines are mighty faint.

The Henderson game was a tough one. Morgan, Boensch and Turner hurt—Vandy Line Not Impressive—Backs Are Showing the Class.

By Paul W. Treanor.

Nashville, Tenn., October 20.—(Special.)—The Commodores came out of the Henderson-Brown game badly battered and with two of the varsity suffering from uncertain injuries.

Some of the extremely optimistic are inclined to think that Vandy will have a fighting chance against the Michigans next Saturday, but the crafty McGugin is too savvy to fall for all the "bear" stuff. Brother-in-law Yost is so prone to pull.

It is well known that Michigan went into the Aggie game minus several of their best men, and Yost will break a leg but what he has every man lack of them to hurl into the family row Saturday.

The Henderson affair was the toughest proposition the Commodores have tackled in some few moons, but it was just the thing some of the new crop needed—a little business under fire. The Maryville and Central games were too tame to get any pep in the newcomers.

With an utter disregard for life and limb, the Arkansas game came tearing in on the backfield men, spilling them in some of the fiercest tackle plays ever seen on Dudley Field. The Commodores were forced to get a little rough themselves or else get trampled. Morgan, the giant center, and Big Chief Wade, a smashing Henderson backfield man, mixed up in a terrible shock and so frightfully hard was the clash that both went limping from the fray. Morgan was badly hurt, twisting his ankle and getting an awful wallop in addition. Peck Turner went down and out, he was so roughly man-handled, and Boensch almost had his teeth jarred loose. It was the first time this year that Morgan has ever been even shaken up, which gives a

BAKER IS NAMED HEAD OF PHILLIES

Succeeds the Late William H. Locke—Charley Dooin to Be Retained as Manager of the Club.

Philadelphia, October 20.—William F. Baker, former police commissioner of New York, was today elected president of the Philadelphia National League Baseball club, succeeding the late William H. Locke. The directors decided to retain Charles Dooin as manager of the team, and a contract will be offered him at the annual meeting of the club in January. Fred T. Chandler, of this city, was elected vice president of L. C. Root, of New York, was made a director.

MARY CALHOUN WILL PLAY WITH MOBILE

Mary Calhoun, former Tech star, has been turned over to Mobile by Boston to play the initial cushion for the Gulls during the campaign.

With Mary's advent as a Gull, it seems certain that Gene Paulet will go to the Memphis Turtles under Mike Finn.

GEORGE STOVALL GOES WITH FEDERAL LEAGUE

Kansas City Mo., October 20.—George Stovall, formerly manager of the St. Louis American League Baseball club, came to terms tonight with the directors of the Kansas City club, of the Federal league, to manage the local team next season.

Stovall announced he would not sign his contract, however, until November 1, when Robert Hedges, president of the St. Louis club, has promised to give an answer on Stovall's request for an unconditional release.

It is understood Stovall's contract, which is for three years, calls for a salary of $7,000 a year and a substantial bonus for signing. Before playing with St. Louis Stovall was with the Cleveland Americans.

Hammer Throw Record.

New York, October 20.—A world's record for throwing the 12-pound hammer from a 7-foot circle was made today at Celtic Park, Long Island, by Patrick Ryan, of the Irish-American Athletic club. Ryan's mark was 213 feet 3 inches. The old record, 207 feet 7 1/2 inches, was made by John Flanagan three years ago.

Gridiron Laid Out At Ponce De Leon For Ga.-Va. Scrap

John Welch, of Athens, representative of the University of Georgia, was in Atlanta yesterday to superintend the laying out of the gridiron at Ponce de Leon park for the game between Georgia and Virginia there Saturday.

A force of workmen were put to work yesterday afternoon chalking the 10-yard lines and the side lines and erecting steel line fences to keep out the large crowd that is sure to be on hand for the game.

By tomorrow the gridiron will be ready for the game, and on that date the goal posts will be erected at the ends of the field.

One man is going to be employed to keep the lines freshly chalked every day until the afternoon of the game.

Advices from both camps are to the effect that the teams have gone to work with a vengeance for this game which they expect to be the hardest battle that they will have this season with few exceptions.

Advices from Charlottesville, Va., are to the effect that the Virginia squad will leave there Thursday night, arriving in Atlanta Friday. They will stop at the New Ansley while here.

Georgia will not leave Athens until late Friday afternoon, spending the night before the game here. They will probably stop at the Georgian Terrace.

Both squads have several injured men, but they are showing marked improvement, and the coaches expect to have them in shape for the game Saturday.

An advance sale of tickets will be put on Wednesday. Tumlin Brothers will probably handle these.

GORDON IS BEATEN BY G. M. C. ELEVEN

Barnesville Boys Led During the First Two Quarters of Pretty Going.

Barnesville, Ga., October 20.—(Special.)—G. M. C. defeated Gordon this afternoon by the score of 30 to 14. G. M. C. failed to kick goal on the first two touchdowns, and Gordon led by 14 to 12 until the third quarter, when G. M. C. got safety and later a touchdown, this time kicking goal. The double pass and end runs of G. M. C. were too many for Gordon, and long gains were made before the runner was stopped. G. M. C. made a few forward passes, but tried mostly end runs and punts. For G. M. C. Wilson and Bradford played the best ball; for Gordon, Smith, Beasley, Kingery and Bell. The line-up:

G. M. C.	Position.	GORDON.
Hall	Q. B.	Owen
Roscoe	R. B.	Smith
Nash	R. B.	Kingery

AT THE THEATERS.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Forsyth.)
While the bill as a whole is not up to the class of the one offered last week, there are four acts at the Forsyth this week which will make a trip to that popular theater well worth the while for all patrons of things theatrical.

Honors are about evenly divided for first place between Welch Mealy and Bell, billed as "the greatest tumbler in the world," and the sketch of Lynn Overman and company, while many were pleased with the Florentine singers. Next in favor came Barry and Wolford, who have paid many visits to Atlanta and have always met with success.
Welch Mealy and Bell corner the laugh market. It is impossible to keep from laughing at the big fat man, and it is equally impossible to keep from applauding the tumbler, who are about the best the Forsyth has ever offered.

Overman's sketch is a treat. It tells the story of the effort of a badger king to secure a big bunch of blackmail money from a young man, to whom he refers as a "bonehead," through the aid of a stage-struck girl, who thinks she is merely demonstrating her talent. The "bonehead," played by Overman, turns out to be a defeating foe, and the badger king, and the little girl has learned a lesson that will last for some time. Overman wins his audience from the start.
Other acts of the bill are Bert Wheeler and company in a pantomime show, Robert Fulgora, a quick-change artist, and the Five Martelles, cyclists.

"Good Ship Nancy Hanks."

(At the Columbia.)

When an audience and a critical one at that—applauds even after the last curtain and forces the repetition of a final number, it must be taken for granted that the show was more than pleasing.
That was precisely what occurred at the Columbia Burlesque theater during the Monday matinee performance of "The Good Ship Nancy Hanks." Miss Bee Darling sang the chorus of the final number several times, to whom she was forced to respond while the crowd was leaving the theater. Throughout the two acts the applause was frequent. The tango dance number, which was by the way, the cleverest dance number of the show, was repeated three or four times, and when twenty dainty maidens, attired in pretty bathing costumes showing dimples where garters should be, sang "Bathing Beach," the crowd was ready to vote then and there that the show was the best put on at the Columbia.

"The Good Ship Nancy Hanks" carries a cargo of pretty girls and a percentage of fun and merriment. It sailed smoothly at matinee and night performances, and in several instances exceeded the speed limit. The action is brisk throughout, and abounds with hilarious situations. As Daisy Deyou, Miss Bee Darling won more honors. She has more to do and does it better than anything else. As Daisy Deyou, Miss Bee Darling won more honors. She has more to do and does it better than anything else. As Daisy Deyou, Miss Bee Darling won more honors. She has more to do and does it better than anything else.

"Salome" in English.

(At the Atlanta.)

Seats are now selling at the Atlanta for the engagement of the English Grand Opera company in "Salome," the Massenet opera, which will be given on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights with a Saturday matinee. The opera is given in four acts and seven scenes, and is a stupendous production, based upon the Biblical story of Herod and John the Baptist. The Massenet music is among the most wonderful ever composed, and during this engagement will be given by an orchestra of twenty-five. The company includes Joseph F. Sheehan as tenor and others of real capability in the various parts. A chorus of sixty good singers assist the principals, and altogether a wonderful performance is given.

"Mutt and Jeff in Panama."

(At the Atlanta.)

"Mutt and Jeff in Panama," which was presented at the Atlanta theater last night in the presence of a fairly good-sized audience, was a comedy play, a trifle better than some that have been seen in Atlanta.
It is a medley of singing and dancing, and is filled with jokes which have the Bud Fisher flavor. The company is a large one and several good voices are quite pretty. Several good voices added, and the production would be better. As it was, the audience did go to the theater in a critical mood, and seemed to enjoy the performance hugely.

Cole Carroll, as Mutt, and Henry Washer, as Jeff, were decidedly funny.

They appeared in a number of costumes in which they have paraded in the papers were readily recognizable. Several of the song numbers were enjoyable.

There will be a matinee this afternoon and the concluding performance tonight.
"Madame X."
(At the Lyric.)
Eugene Blair, in the title role of "Madame X," which played its opening performance at the Lyric theatre last night, pleased a large audience. This character is one of extreme difficulty, but Miss Blair portrays it well, especially during the act, which is the most difficult scene.
The story of this well-known play, of course, is familiar to everyone. The attempt of a woman who has made the mistake of leading a shameful life to conceal that fact from her son makes a thrilling story. The dramatic scene when, while on trial for her life, her identity is revealed to her son, who happens to be her attorney in the case, moved many to tears at last night's performance.
Margaret Myrtle, a charming young woman, who takes the part of Helene, daughter of the prosecuting attorney, has powers which one is inclined to believe may yet be heard from in a more conspicuous way. The work of Edward S. Phillips, as Perissod, is excellent and won him the applause of the audience last night.
"Madame X" will be seen at the Lyric for the remainder of this week.

ATLANTA PARTY IS ENTERTAINED AT KNOXVILLE EXPO

Knoxville, Tenn., October 20.—(Special.)—Colonel and Mrs. Robert I. Lowry and the party who have accompanied them to visit the National Conservation exposition have been brilliantly entertained.

They are at the Hotel Atkin, and last night were entertained at a dinner by Mr. and Mrs. David Chapman. They were the guests at luncheon of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Ross, at their palatial country home, and were given a reception in the afternoon by Mrs. Herbert Hall.

Governor and Mrs. Slaton, who are in the party, visited the exposition yesterday, escorted by Mrs. Clark Howell, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Robinson, Mr. T. B. Payne, Mr. E. T. Lamb, Governor and Mrs. Slaton return home Tuesday morning. Judge and Mrs. Baxter give the Atlanta party a luncheon Tuesday, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sanford a dinner Tuesday night.

TRIAL OF WATSON MAY BE LONG ONE

Judge Foster Now Considering Motion to Quash Indictment—Akerman Thinks Case May Be Extended.

Augusta, Ga., October 20.—Hearing of the motion of the defense to quash the federal indictment against Thomas E. Watson, editor, publisher and politician, charged with sending obscene matter through the mails, today was continued until tomorrow by United States Judge Rufus E. Foster, in order to give the court opportunity to study the language of the publications alleged to be objectionable.

Attorneys for Watson, prior to the opening of court, had volunteered the prediction that the case never would reach the jury, and had intimated that it might not be tried at all. In this, however, they were mistaken, for at 11 o'clock this morning, less than half an hour after court opened, Judge Foster called the case and directed that a jury be drawn.

Upon request of S. G. McLendon, leading attorney for the defense, the drawing of the jury was postponed in order that two motions might be presented to the court. The first of these was a petition asking that the government be directed to file a bill of particulars, supplying the issues of Watson's Magazine and The Jeffersonian, which the alleged obscene language appeared. By direction of the court this immediately was complied with.

Quashing of Indictment Asked.
The second motion of the defense—and the one upon which argument still was presented—was that the indictment be quashed, when court adjourned—was that which requested the quashing of the indictment against the Georgia editor upon the ground that congress has no right to abridge the freedom of the press.

It was admitted by the defense that Watson had written and published certain attacks upon the Roman Catholic church, in which the passages referred to in the indictment returned against him November 2, 1912, appeared. Two of these passages were in English, and one in Latin. Mr. McLendon, however, argued that the indictment should be quashed because the alleged unsuitable matter was not set out therein nor the names of any persons addressed given; because the publication containing the passages is not a book or pamphlet; because the language is not obscene within the meaning of the statute; because the supreme court has no authority to establish a standard of obscenity, and because the statute itself is indefinite in that it omits the mention of newspapers and magazines.

Claim Statute Void.

Pursuing this argument, the defense held that the federal statute is void because congress has not the power to make any act a crime in which the element of unlawful intent is not involved, or to abridge the freedom of the press. Mr. McLendon further argued that the motion to quash should be sustained because the alleged objectionable language in one instance appeared in "dead tongue" and that the only recognized language in the United States is English.

Mr. McLendon then launched into an extended speech in support of his motion, reciting the chronology of similar cases in the courts of the United States for many years. He was in the midst of this argument, when Judge Foster interrupted him by saying that it seemed useless to further pursue the historical aspects of the matter.

"The United States supreme court has decided," said Judge Foster, "that saying that the real purpose of the case, as he understood it, was to determine whether the language referred to in the indictment is in violation of the law, Judge Foster announced that he would adjourn court until tomorrow in order to familiarize himself with the exact nature of the publications in question."

There was no demonstration of any sort either before or during the opening session of the trial. Mr. Watson, in order to familiarize himself with the assistant counsel, arrived in court only a few minutes before his case was directed to file a bill of particulars at the table with S. G. McLendon.

Watson to Address Jury.
It was announced here tonight by S. G. McLendon, leading attorney for Thomas Watson, that when the case against the Georgia editor finally is submitted for argument, Mr. Watson would address the jury in his own behalf. As Mr. Watson himself is a lawyer and has been admitted to practice in the United States courts, he is entitled to act as his own attorney and has the right to make the argument to the jury in support of his case should he desire to do so.

NO NAVAL HOLIDAY FOR GERMAN EMPIRE

Berlin, October 20.—The proposal by Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the British admiralty, that England and Germany should declare a "naval holiday" in 1914 was received without sympathy by the German government. It is doubtful whether any official notice will be taken of the suggestion. Naval authorities consider the proposition that German should not build any warships while England is constructing or acquiring at least three cannot be discussed.

Vassar
Swiss Ribbed
Union Suits
For Gentlemen

MOST knit union suits are made from a knit fabric, made by the yard, cut, and sewed together. The seams have to be bulky and round to prevent raveling. Cuffs for sleeve and ankle are knit separately and sewed on. The extra material is left in the armholes, seat, knees, elbows. No wonder such a garment doesn't fit.

Vassar Swiss ribbed union suits are knit, not cut, to shape; they fit because they're elastic. We control the machines that make these goods; only ones in the world.

You'll enjoy wearing a Vassar Swiss ribbed union suit; it's comfort and quality combined. Costs more than the other kind; worth more.

MRS. PANKHURST SAVED BY WILSON

President Opens Doors of U. S. to the Militant Suffragette. Mrs. Pankhurst Is Much Elated at Outcome of Case.

Washington, October 20.—America's doors were opened today to Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, and during the few weeks covered by her lecture engagements the British militant suffragette leader is free to go where she will in the United States.

An order releasing the much-discussed visitor from detention at Ellis Island, N. Y., and reversing the deportation order of the special inquiry board, was issued today after President Wilson had conferred with Secretary Wilson, of the department of labor and a formal hearing before immigration Commissioner Caminetti on Mrs. Pankhurst's appeal had been concluded.

Secretary Wilson announced that he and the president had agreed that Mrs. Pankhurst should be admitted "on her own recognizance," with the understanding that she would depart when she had filled her lecture engagements.

Both the president and the secretary agreed with Commissioner Caminetti in the opinion that there was an element of doubt as to whether the acts for which Mrs. Pankhurst had been deported in England constituted moral turpitude or were political in character.

Statement About Case.
Commissioner Caminetti tonight issued a formal statement outlining the reasons for his decision in the case. "There is nothing in the record or before me," said the statement, "to indicate that the British government desires that Mrs. Pankhurst shall be returned to England; and the evidence of record indicates that while she was placed under a sentence of three years' penal servitude she has served only a small part of the sentence, and apparently no effort has been made to compel her to serve the balance, but as a matter of fact, marked leniency has been shown toward the applicant by the English authorities, and shall this government deny even temporary asylum when by doing so less consideration would be shown Mrs. Pankhurst than England has displayed?"

Mrs. Pankhurst states, and counsel throughout the case have asserted, that she is coming here only for a short visit for the specified purpose of fulfilling engagements to deliver lectures; that all that is desired is that she be allowed to carry out these engagements.

"Upon carefully considering the entire record and all of the circumstances of the case, I am of the opinion that the best disposition to make of the matter will be to accept the assurances of all parties that Mrs. Pankhurst will depart from the country at the termination of her engagements, and so recommend."

Mrs. Pankhurst Given Freedom.
New York, October 20.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English militant suffragette leader, landed on Manhattan Island at 1 o'clock today from Ellis Island, where she had been detained since last Saturday by the immigration authorities. She had been ordered deported as an undesirable alien, but President Wilson and Secretary of Labor Wilson intervened on her appeal from this decision, and today instructed Anthony Caminetti, commissioner general of immigration, to release her on her own recognizance and without bond. Mrs. Pankhurst now will be able to carry out her contemplated lecture tour in this country.

It was difficult to imagine that the slightly built, gray-haired little woman who stepped ashore from the ferryboat at the Battery was the same person that for several years had caused the British government so much trouble by reason of her militant tactics in behalf of woman's suffrage or her incitations to militancy for "the cause."

Also her tranquil countenance and brightness of eye gave no indication that she had gone through the ordeals of six prolonged hunger strikes to obtain her release from prison sentences imposed for illegal acts committed in England in her endeavor to gain votes for women.

Mrs. Pankhurst Elated.
Shortly after she landed Mrs. Pankhurst was taken in an automobile to the residence of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, where she had luncheon, and tonight she was dining at the Aldine club by the Women's Political Union.

She was highly elated over her release. "The American people did it! It is their will," she said. "What will the English say? Then she paid her respects to Reginald McKenna, the British home secretary, characterizing him as "the chief torturer for England."

She said it was not her purpose to preach militancy in this country, but that she would confine herself to an exposition of the treatment accorded the suffragettes in England.

Mrs. Pankhurst was the recipient of a demonstration unique in the annals of Ellis Island as she was leaving the immigration station. Men and women employees sought points of vantage from which to see the militant leader, and the board of special inquiry adjourned its cases that its members and the immigrants might see her as she walked toward the ferryboat and the freedom of the country.

Dinner Given Mrs. Pankhurst.
More than 300 members of the Women's Political Union attended the dinner at the Aldine club, which was given as an official welcome of Mrs. Pankhurst. The militant leader, in an address, said the happenings of the last two days had done much to restore her confidence in the democracy of the American people. "Think of the opinion in England, when the news of my release reached there," she added. "They committed me there for crimes against the law, which were prompted by the highest motives, and nothing would have pleased them more than to have seen me deported."

To those who criticized her motives and her right to come to America and preach her doctrines to the people of this country, she said: "I exercise the same right as the representative of any suppressed people to go to the people of other nations and plead for assistance. Your own Benjamin Franklin, in the time of last year's difficulty, made a pilgrimage to France seeking relief and assistance. This is a woman's movement, and I am a woman's movement. Right to go to the women all over the civilized world and lay our case before them, as often and as comprehensively as we can do so."

UNION CITY STORE ENTERED BY BURGLARS

Union City, Ga., October 20.—(Special.) For the third time within the last thirty days, Union City was visited by professional burglars. They broke through the plate-glass window of the general merchandise store of J. T. Pharmacy by entering a sewer pipe in the street, crawling under the store and bursting through the door.

They managed to open the outer door of the safe in Braxwell's store, but were evidently frightened away before they could enter the inner compartment. Other than breaking the plate-glass window, no serious damage was done. Only a few dollars' worth of goods was taken from each store.

WALKER IS WORKING FOR SEA ISLAND COTTON

Washington, October 20.—Representative Walker, of Georgia, today introduced a bill which would appropriate $3,000 for the use of the U. S. bureau of agriculture to improve the seed and cultivation of sea island cotton in Georgia, Florida and South Carolina. It was referred to the committee on agriculture.

Sawmill Burned.

Adel, Ga., October 20.—(Special.)—The large sawmill owned by H. H. and Ed Tift, and located at Adel, was destroyed by fire at an early hour Sunday morning. The plant, including 35,000 feet of lumber, which was burned, was estimated to be worth $20,000. The loss was fairly well covered by insurance. The burning of this mill throws a large number of men out of employment.

Alliance Convention.

The annual convention of the southern district of the Christian and Missionary alliance will be held in Atlanta, beginning November 9 and closing November 16, at Alliance tabernacle, 79 Capitol Avenue. Delegates from many states will attend, also a number of prominent preachers and missionaries. The meetings will be public.

SMOOTHING WAY FOR MONEY BILL

President Wilson Willing to Accept Amendments—The Measure Will Likely Be Passed at Extra Session.

Washington, October 20.—With President Wilson willing to accept substantial amendments to the administration currency bill, the hope of securing speedy action on the measure in the senate committee, supporters of the administration today grew optimistic over the chances for the passage of the measure before the end of the extra session of congress.

The president himself, in a letter to Majority Leader Underwood, announced his willingness to consider a proposal for a recess of the house, because, he said, conferences with members of the senate committee led him to believe the bill would be reported to the senate the first week in November and passed during the present session.

A reduction in the number of reserve banks, fixed by the administration bill at twelve, and the removal of the secretary of agriculture and the controller of the currency from the federal reserve board, which would control the new currency system, were the amendments which the president let it be known he would not oppose.

Witnesses before the senate committee have almost unanimously contended for these amendments, and a majority of the committee is believed to favor them.

The proposed amendments would retain the federal board as a strictly governmental institution, but would provide that it shall be composed of seven members, six to be appointed by the president and to devote their entire time to the work of the board, and the seventh to be the secretary of the treasury. The committee has not yet taken up the question of reducing the number of reserve banks, but suggestions have been made putting the number at three from three to ten. Senator Weeks (Republican) has a proposal that the number be reduced to a single federal bank, to be controlled absolutely by the government.

The proposal for a recess of the house was taken up at the white house and at the capitol today, and negotiations continued without any definite conclusion. President Wilson's letter to Mr. Underwood, made public at the white house, said the president was confident the currency bill would be reported to the senate the first week of November and would be passed within three weeks thereafter.
